

Lecher antenna course

The Lecher antenna is a measuring device with which vitality of tissues and organs can be measured.

The exact level of health or pathology of an internal organ or tissue can be established.

The Lecher antenna is a highly valuable instrument to use in acupuncture or manual therapies. The Lecher antenna gives affirmation about the appropriateness of chosen medication (including homeopathic and phytotherapeutic medication) and predicts the level of its effect.

When adjusted to the frequency of a certain organ, the Lecher antenna with its magnetic rod measures the energy-strength of that organ. The extent to which the energy strength deviates from the standard, is indicative for the energy imbalance of this organ.

The Lecher antenna makes it possible to gather a lot of information about organs, tissues, inflammatory processes, emotions, parasites, illnesses and much more, in a short space of time. It localises painful inflammatory foci and blockages accurately.

The 6-day course consists of two 3-day modules, Thursday through Saturday. This course is a highly practical course; there is ample opportunity to practice with the guidance of expert teachers. Skill in using the Lecher antenna is only acquired by practicing a lot and have your measurements verified wherever possible. Our prime purpose in this extended basic course is to teach you how to make your measurements using the Lecher antenna.

The course will take place in our well equipped and beautiful education building that is centrally located in The Netherlands (less than 60 minutes drive from Schiphol Airport). The course is given on 28, 29, 30 June and 12,13,14 July 2018 (subject to sufficient participants).

Besides our basic course, we offer several in-depth refresher courses for using the Lecher antenna in acupuncture, manual therapies, choice of medication, Building Biology and neural therapy.

Scientists established that the cohesion and existence of all matter is due to energy, which is measurable as electromagnetic radiation. Every organ, tissue or cell has its own specific vibrational frequency. This EM-radiation is what is being measured with the Lecher antenna.

Because people and animals are increasingly suffering from a geo-pathogenic as well as an electro-pathogenic-load, this course extensively addresses Building Biology and its practical applications.
